Notice,

To Wheelwrights, Blacksmiths, Tanners, Horness-Makers, Saddlers, Hatters, &c.

BELIEVING as I do, that Providence, at Fairfax Court-House, would be a suitable situation for mechanics of the above description, I offer to such, lots in that village for sale, on ground rent for ever—will build and furnish suitable houses and rent to them; and invite any who feel disposed to settle there, for the purpose of carrying on their respective trades to advantage, to come and view the situation. It is a very public place, the centre of the county, where the superior and county courts are held. The Little River Turnpike Road passes through this little town from Alexandria westward, and where all the public meetings for the county, &c. are held; and where trades of the aforesaid description being carried on, would meet with great encouragement, and be a public convenience to the country around. No situation can be more healthy—good water, and fire wood cheap. Mechanics of the above description must generally depend on the country people, farmers, &c. to be their customers. Here they would be in a convenient situation for all the purposes. I invite a call, and view for themselves. I would also furnish lots adjacent, from one to five acres each, for cultivation, pasture, &c. on moderate terms; all of which can be shown, and terms made known, on application to RICH'D. RATCLIFFE, Fairfax Court-House, Va.

GERMAN NEWS.

In our paper of the 20th instant, we gave some extracts from German papers furnished by a friend, who has since received later files, from which he has selected and translated the following.

[New-York Daily Advertiser.

The king of Wurtemberg has ordered a new organization of the courts of justice, whereby the former delay of decisions is prevented.

Deputations from the governments of Wurtemberg, Hesse, &c. have been sent to Rome on business relative to the Roman Catholic churches in those countries. Bigotry seems to vanish in Germany, Catholics become more enlightened, and protestants more liberal, and a good understanding exists among both parties.

Orfila's celebrated work on poisons and antidotes has passed thro' several editions in Germany.

The city of Bonn has made suitable preparations for the accommodation of a great number of students. In the course of this spring 500 students are expected, among whom will be several German princes.

The chief rectorship of the flourishing university in that city, is conducted by professor Hultman, whose superintendence secures harmony and usefulness.

Frederick Wilhelm, the enlightened king of Prussia, spares no pains to exalt the character, and to promote the usefulness of the Rhenish University. The learned professors are divided into committees for extra scientific purposes.

Professors E. M. Arndt and Von Schlegel conduct the historical annals of the institution. Heinrich Von Schlegel, and Noggerath are appointed to examine and appraise the celebrated collection of artificial and natural curiosities, ancient coins, manuscripts, incunables, &c. belonging to Canonius Pick.

This collection will be purchased for the University, at the valuation of the professors. Delbruck and others are engaged in arranging and securing specimens of art, (restored after the conquest of Paris), ancient German manuscripts, pateristic monuments, &c. Chemical, medical, and philosophical subjects are referred to Kastner, Nees Von Ehrenbeck, Goldfuss, Harless, Windischman, Nake, &c. Upwards of 20,000 volumes are already on the shelves of the library.

The excellent library of the late Millon of Paris, and a very valuable and celebrated library in Switzerland will probably be added in a short time. Several intelligent book-sellers have been established at Bonn, and are assiduously engaged in augmenting and improving the university library.

With unusual promptitude they deliver per order, German, French, Italian, and other works, and Capferberg of Mayence has established an extensive type foundry. Frederick Kauffman & Son, of Dresden, have invented several curious musical instruments, which astonish and delight every hearer. They are the Harmonichord, (peculiarly calculated for vocal accompaniments), the Chordalounian, the Trumpet-Automatur, and the Belloneon.

The number of Students at the University of Berlin, is 1161, among whom are 447 foreigners.

A French paper speaking of Agriculture, as the source of a nation's wealth and happiness, adds—"Without leaving our country we can make immense conquests, and these will be surer and more profitable than external conquests—they will not cost a single drop of blood, and they will dry many tears. The true Champs d'Asie are in France. Let us be humane and magnanimous, always sympathizing with the unfortunate, but by no means favor or promote emigration. Let us show ourselves as the most prudent nation, and we shall have conquered the nation a second time."

The editor of the Journal de la Province d'Anvers, called the Constitutionnel, at Antwerp, has been sent out of the kingdom.

Beethoven, the great music composer, has lately met with a severe accident, having been nearly run over by a carriage, the noise of which in consequence of partial deafness he could not hear in time.

A splendid marine bath is to be established at Apowale in Stewick. The king made a present of 2000 dollars to the institution, and the citizens subscribe very liberally. The whole expense of the bath will amount to 20,000 dols.

The Leipzig house of Breitkopf and Hartel celebrated its first centennial jubilee on the 27th Jan. Bernhard Christoph Breitkopf was the founder of the celebrated firm, the present principal of which is Gottfried Christoph Hartel. In this extensive establishment employment is given to a great number of persons in various branches,

Book and music printing and selling, typefoundry, lithographic operations, and manufacturing musical instruments.

From the London Statesman, March 10.

ON AMERICA'S RISING GREATNESS.

By looking over the newspapers of the three great sea ports of America, any man without being a statesman, may discover the gigantic growth of this infant state in the new world—but if the politician examines its treaties with the different powers it is connected with, he cannot but cover its wise and firm policy.

Even with great Britain it has so far gained its point with respect to the great article of the fisheries, that a middle aged man may live to see the time when the Americans will enquire of us what business we have to fish on their shores and beds. In fact, our state is attenuating by luxury and extravagance, their's is acquiring additional strength by temperance and economy.

Sir W. Jones ('tis thought in the Muse Recalled) says—

Beyond the vast Atlantic deep

A dome by viewless Genii shall be rais'd;

The walls of Adamant, compact and steep,

The portals with sky tintured gems embellized.

There on a lofty throne shall virtue stand;

To her the youth of Delaware shall kneel,

And when her smiles rain plenty o'er the land,

Bow, Tyrants, bow beneath th' avenging steel.

From a late Liverpool paper.

EXTRAORDINARY FOX CHASE.

The annals of fox hunting, we think, seldom present any thing equal to the following detail of a chase which took place a few weeks ago.

A numerous and highly respectable field of sportsmen turned out at the Twemle Moor, on Thursday the 19th ult. where they soon started a fox, and, after a run of two hours, they pursued him into the town of Whitchurch. In the Green End he was met by several persons, who drove him back over the Town Pool Meadow, from whence he took refuge in the garden of John Knight, esq. Here the hounds met with a check, and the sportsmen not being able to get into the garden, were obliged to ride up the White Lionyard through the town, into Dodington. Sly reynard was, however, soon driven from his hiding place by the huntsmen, and he took into the garden of Miss E. Langford, and got into the cupboard, whither he was pursued by the dogs and taken. The consternation of Miss Langford, who is an elderly maiden lady, may be more easily conceived than described, in having a fox and a whole pack of hounds in her house, and about fifty red coats assailing the house without, headed by the gallant lord Hill. Here, however, we are compelled to say, the noble general's skill did not so effectually serve him as in his peninsular campaigns, for he could not possibly force the citadel in front, but was obliged to move by a circuitous route into the rear, where a free egress having been left for Mrs. Langford's unexpected visitors, the fox and hounds, his lordship and comrades, had an easy entrance. But if impossible to describe the feelings of Miss Langford, what can be said for those of her antiquated maid, poor Betty Numerly, who happened to be coming down the stairs, in a red nightcap, at the time the fox and dogs were ascending. Among the sportsmen Sir John Hill, bart, was conspicuous. This "Father of Aermes," although between 70 and 80 years of age, rides with as much spirit as any of the young ones, and is generally in at the death. The worthy baronet was attended by three of his sons, and the brush was taken by the son of the late highly respectable Colonel Hill, and grand-son of Sir John. Lord Loughborough and several gentlemen of distinction were present.

Boston, April 22.

We are indebted to a friend for Paris papers to March 6, received by the Dido, from Havre. Their principal contents have been already furnished to us by the English papers. They are almost filled with debates and other discussions on the proposition for a modification of the law of elections. The Emperor of Russia has published an ordinance by which the right of establishing manufactures of every description is granted to the peasants, it having been before confined to the nobility and merchants. The mourning for the late king of Sweden was continued for a whole year, except one month, when it was suspended on account of the coronation; and it was for that reason continued a month beyond the year. But the long period of wearing mourning having proved injurious to trade, the king "having taken into consideration that the loss of a good king, or of a member of the royal family, is great enough for a faithful people without increasing it by any observances injurious to the public industry," has ordained that for the future mourning for a king or queen shall last but six months.—The births in Stockholm during the year 1818, were 2344—deaths, 2880,—marriages, 506,—divorces, 26.

A letter from Sulco, Lapland, in N. Lat. 67 deg. 15 min. complains that there had been no cold weather, and that the fields are free from snow, a thing before unheard of in that latitude.

"We feel greatly at a loss how to advise you at this period in regard to shipments of Uplands, and Orleans.

The present crisis is one of such extreme difficulty, that we are afraid to trust to expectations, formed from a consideration of the cotton trade alone. If this were the only subject to be taken into view, we should be bold in recommending shipments at higher prices than our present quotations would justify. The stock of Orleans is inconsiderable; and although there are plenty of Uplands and Brazils, there is no oppressive weight of stock, and the import must be reduced by the unfavorable accounts from Europe; at the same time the spinners are making large profits, and the consumption is, of course, rather encreasing than diminishing. The great depression in prices that has already taken place, has,

however, been principally caused by the Manchester bankers, having refused to take the bills till lately, used in cotton payments to a great extent; and to the general scarcity of money, occasioned by a great want of confidence prevalent in London, in the stability of present commercial transactions, and by the reduced limits of the issue of the bank of England. Till the perceptible alleviation of the present distresses is felt, it can scarcely be expected that the Manchester bankers will become more liberal in their accommodations, or that the distrust of the London discounters will be lessened. We have nevertheless seen many instances, some of an early return of confidence, and plenty of money after periods of distress, and some of succe re-actions at not long intervals.

What we consider the worst feature of the present period is the union with these circumstances of the examination into the situation of the bank of England. Whatever the final result may be, the effect for some months, it is evident, must be to lay a great restraint on the proceedings of the bank. Till the discussions (not expected to commence, as Mr. Tierney says, till the middle of May) are over, the bank cannot change its present posture for one more favorable to trade; and whilst it may be expected that the restrictions will be continued, it is but reasonable to suppose that the warmth of the discussion on the report of the secret committee will make them very circumspect for some time after; and if parliament determines that cash payments shall be resumed, in one or two years, this circumspection must become permanent. It is from the perplexity that these considerations produce in our minds, that we hesitate in recommending cotton shipments, in the expectation of better prices when they arrive, than we now quote; but we cannot feel any apprehension of shipments made at about 20 cts. for good qualities. We are respectfully." [Telegraph.]

Lexington, (Ky.) April 2.

WESTERN PROSPECTS.

The late fall of rain has swelled our navigable streams, and animated the country with prospects of shipping our products to distant markets. The mind, with great capacity to view the past and to look into the future, is, nevertheless, lost in amazement in viewing the present condition and rapid progress of the western country to power and happiness. Its population has increased, and still continues to increase without a parallel.—This country presents to the eye of the world a pleasing scene of farmers, freeholders, and independent yeomanry. No man is so poor and wretched, but what, with industry and economy, he may purchase from the government, in this section of the union, a tract of land of sufficient extent to maintain a large family; and the same facility, no doubt, will be afforded for fifty years to come; and we are happy to see the enterprising citizens from every part taking advantage of the inviting opportunity.

Nor is the War Department tardy in making use of the advantages which the wise Ruler of the Universe has so bountifully bestowed upon us. The vast regions of the Mississippi and Missouri are about to be established, which will rescue our own traders from the influence of foreign traders, and our infant frontier settlements will be protected from the incursions of savages, who, by this operation of government, under the direction of Mr. Secretary Calhoun, will be identified in feelings and interests with the United States, to whom alone they will look for counsel. The undertaking is hazardous—but not the less necessary. The western country has a right to expect it, no matter what its consequences.

The government is able, and it is its bounden duty, to commence this great work of territorial security. Indeed, it ought to have been previously attempted. Much anxiety, much distress, and much expence, would have been saved in the last war. But it is not too late to do good, and we most sincerely hope the undertaking may be prosperous. The public mind has been attracted, by the importance and utility of these military operations, to this great and flourishing quarter of the North American continent; and the public could not willingly see the attempt fail. We are not personally acquainted with the Secretary of War; but we feel confident he will employ every means necessary to the accomplishment of so desirable an object—and we shall have mistaken his character if he does not succeed in a project which will add so much and such timely credit to the administration.

It is expected the distinguished col. Jessup, quarter master general, will accompany the expedition, to ensure its execution. These establishments on the western waters will not exceed in expence one of our seventy-four's; but, if they were equal to the expence of a 74 and ten frigates, justice and policy require that we should have them. [Gazette.]

ALEXANDRIA:

THURSDAY, APRIL 29, 1819.

I doubt whether a more effectual mode could be devised of putting young fools out of conceit with duelling, than exhibiting to the public correct characters, upon the cath of several creditable witnesses, well acquainted with them, of the persons who make a practice of it. When compared with those of the men who condemn and abjure it, the contrast would be sufficiently impressive to fill all who contemplated it with horror and disgust. On one side, the virtue, the wisdom, the piety, the elegance and amenity, the consequence and the dignity of society—on the other, the profligate, the desperate, the low bred ruffians, the black-legs, the gamblers, men of ill fame, of needy circumstances, who live by the casual prey they can pick up as they prow through the underwood of life. The evil is too serious to be laughed at, while in such hands; else there would be a chance of its being derided out of fashion. It is only when it falls into the hands of men, the meanness of whose standing and occupations in society throw a cast of ridicule upon it, that it can be treated with derision—but among us who own no distinctions of that kind, and by whom he who laughed at the incongruity of a butcher's boy challenging a general officer, would run a risk of being set down as an anti-republican, no such weapon can be used in attacking the practice. Yet in Europe, one of the most successful modes of combating the vice, has been that of satirists putting sword and pistol into the hands of the most contemptible beings they can think of. Doctor Smollet has, in several parts of his imitable works, reduced the business of duelling to almost as low a state of ridicule and degradation as it deserves. I am not sure in which of his works—but I rather believe that it is in Peregrine Pickle, that he introduces two doughty blockheads, who are resolute upon displaying their valor in single combat, as agreeing, at the instance of a mischievous wag, to fight, instead of swords or pistols, with tobacco-pipes filled with assafetida—in short, to smoke that execrable nauseous drug against each other till one should give out—inocent, no doubt, compared with the usual mode—and certainly full as brave and respectable. In another place, he makes Roderick Random persuade his friend, Hugh Strap, to challenge another to fight him with razors—as Hugh, being by trade a shaver, it was the only weapon he was likely to be expert at. How often have we seen the most ludicrous details in the European newspapers, (most of them fabricated to ridicule the custom) of haberdashers' shop-boys, blacksmiths' or tailors' apprentices, going out to fight, and uniformly ending in some ludicrous, not seldom dirty catastrophe. I remember one case which created much merriment in London. A journeyman barber and a valet out of place, happening to meet in a beer house, in the west end of the town, had an argument upon the comparative merits of bears grease and Mareschal pomatum, for thickening the hair. It was too important a point to be given up with less than life, and fight they would with pistols. The publican, who was an arch, funny, ingenious dog, and had about as much feeling for those fellows as I have for other duellists, tipped the wink to a neighbor of his, a butcher, who happened to be taking his beer too, and proposed to him to join with him in accommodating the gentlemen duellists with pistols, and in seeing, as seconds, fair play between them; at the same time fixing on the yard behind his house for the place of deadly meeting. Having settled this to the satisfaction of the combatants, the two seconds returned to prepare and charge the weapons, which having done in ten or fifteen minutes, they gave notice to the others to come forth and take their ground. Every thing was done in the form, which, according to the information they had received, was done by great gentlemen duellists in such circumstances. The ground was measured at ten yards—they took their respective stands—the word fire was given—each pulled his trigger, and the barber, feeling something touch him, looked down, and seeing with horror his white clothes besmeared with blood, roared out with a dismal yell, "I am a dead man," and fell upon the ground.—The valet, seeing his adversary's plight, cried out in terrible consternation, "God deliver me, I have killed a man, and I shall be banged as round as a juggler's box"—and was preparing to take to his heels, when the parish beadle, who lived opposite, and whom our landlord had sent to invite over on the occasion, rushed into the yard, and in the king's name made them all prisoners. The fact was, that mine host, who much relished a joke, and loved mischief still more, had, with a view to torment the wretches, and at the same time cast ridicule on the practice of duelling, which he heartily despised, lomented the quarrel, and with the help of the butcher, instead of leaden bullets, put clotted blood into the pistols. The valet was the better shot of the two, and hit the poor comber of hair. After enjoying their terror and consternation for some time, during which one of the combatants was firmly persuaded that he was on his way to the other world, and the other, that he would inevitably be hanged—the landlord urging the supposed wounded man to repent and prepare for death, and the valet offering all he had about him to the beadle to let him escape—the two seconds joined in beseeching the latter to let the wretch escape—the fellow pretending to relent, let go his hold, and the miserable culprit disappeared. But the most difficult thing of all was to persuade the barber that he was not wounded to death;—of which, when he was assured, he paid his reckoning and departed, promising the others, in which they readily believed him, that he never would attempt again to play the gentleman in duel, but if he should have a quarrel with any one, content himself with boxing it out as well as he should be able.

The story went abroad, and was soon rendered more widely useful by being represented in an excellent caricature print, which was supposed to have prevented many a coxcomb from making a fool of himself.

Ridiculous as this story seems, it is not an atom more so, or more contemptible or degrading to the parties concerned than ninety nine in a hundred of the duels which pass off in our newspapers without comment.—Indeed, in my opinion, a man bearing the name of a gentleman, and having pretensions to education and intelligence, is a thousand times more contemptible for flashing away as a duellist than a valet or barber, or a man of bad education and low breeding can be.

To conclude, my advice to my duelling fellow citizens is, to dismiss powder and ball and pistols altogether, and if they must fight, to fight in a manner more becoming them; and in conformity to the suggestion of Dr. Smollet, to smoke assafetida against each other, or any other more stinking matter they can lay their hands upon.

of business, but from feeble health might be expected shortly to fare the common lot of all; but when we behold one in the bloom of youth, in the season of health and spirits, cut down by the unrelenting hand of death, it cannot fail to excite feelings of a solemn nature in the bosom: but a few months previous, he flourished in all the life and gaiety of youth, but now is an inhabitant of the grave. To a modest deportment, a conciliating disposition, he added a generosity of soul and amiability of manner which endeared him to his friends and companions. Warm in his friendships, assiduous in his business, he commanded the respect and esteem of all who knew him. May his sudden departure from this fleeting world, while we drop the tear of sorrow at his death, warn us of the uncertainty of earthly hopes, and impress on our minds the consideration "that in the midst of life we are in death." The above is but a feeble tribute of one who knew his worth and esteemed his merits. [Communicated.]

Having been long experienced in that business on the Delaware river, and having taken the fishery for several seasons, he has caused a complete outfit to be made, not only for taking Shad, as heretofore, but Herrings, of which it is well known that almost any number may be caught at that shore, when the gluts are in he river. A very complete and commodious fish-house, on the spot, may be made use of by persons disposed to put up fish extensively, and who bring barrels and salt for the purpose. A number of barrels, and a quantity of salt, may probably also be had at the fish-house. As the

at the mouth of Potomac Creek, on the same estate, is carried on this season by Mr. John Henderson, there will be the greater certainty that customers will not be disappointed in herrings, the two fisheries being near together; but country customers are cautioned not to come too early for herrings; as, of late years, they have several times done, and by returning home have missed of getting their supply, which afterwards was plentiful.

Valuable Land for Sale.

THE subscriber will sell at private sale the tract of land on which he lives, containing about 1500 Acres.

It joins the town of Warrenton, the seat of justice for Fauquier county—it is 42 miles from Alexandria, the city of Washington and Georgetown; 40 from Fredericksburg; and 45 from Winchester. This estate, in a neighborhood celebrated for health and good water, is well adapted to grazing and to the growth of corn and wheat. The turnpike road leading from Alexandria to Warrenton is finished, with the exception of seven miles. The improvements are a two story HOUSE, about fifty feet long, in the suburbs of Warrenton; two houses for overseers; a large barn, stables, and every necessary house for a farm. On the property are three good apple orchards, and a variety of other fruit trees. This tract is now divided into two farms—each of which has a superabundance of wood, and is laid out into six fields under good fences, with running water in every field. I believe there is a sufficiency of stone on the land to enclose the whole tract. Both farms have been under a course of clover and plaster for several years, by which they have been much improved, and the plaster acts with very great effect. The subscriber will divide the tract to suit purchasers. The terms are one third down, with an accommodating credit on the balance, if he sells a part; but only one fourth if the purchaser buys the whole tract, together with the stock of horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, the farming utensils of every description, and all the provision that may be on hand for the support of the farm.

Gunston for Sale.
THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 18 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Pohick creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shad and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided if requisite. This estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. Plaster acts with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania.—I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles, on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain: being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole: it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary out-house, three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abound with wild fowl, particularly canvass backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensils and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the Ridge, will be taken in payment.—Letters must be addressed to me at Pohick Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.
September 4. GEORGE MASON.

Valuable Property for Sale.
THE subscriber is desirous of selling a handsomely situated farm, on Hunting creek, in Fairfax county Virginia, adjoining the Mount Vernon estate, and the lands of general Thomson Mason, four miles from Alexandria, containing about 240 acres; 80 of which are in wood—40 to 50 in thriving meadow of clover and timothy—a part of the residue recently seeded with wheat and rye, and clover, last spring—the whole enclosed with a new post and rail fence.—The improvements are, a comfortable and convenient frame dwelling house and kitchen, smoke house, poultry house, granary and stables.—There is on this place a rich and productive garden, and a large body of marsh meadow, from which may be saved annually 100 tons of hay, nearly as nutritious as the best timothy or clover.—With the farm would be sold a number of very valuable horses, cows and sheep; waggon carts, and a variety of farming utensils and household and kitchen furniture; corn, oats and rye, and 40 tons hay. Also, adjoining the one above described, a farm containing 180 acres, recently enclosed, on which is a brick house, which a trifling expense would render comfortable. The soil is excellent, and a considerable part might be easily converted into meadow.—It would be sold with the other or separately. Also, a number of valuable servants, male and female.—To prevent unnecessary application, he would observe, that they will only be sold to persons residing in the District or its vicinity, and not to be carried from it. The subscriber will also sell the greater part of his household furniture, which is new and handsome. For terms of all or any part of the above property, apply to NOBLET HERBERT, esq., or
